REBELS CAPTURE CITY.

Durango Was in Deplorable Condition From Long Siege.

The garrison at Durango was small and the city was in a deplorable condition from the long siege. Only a few commodities were available and these were extremely high priced.

Fearing an attack, the authorities at Aguascalientes have placed that city practically under martial law. Posters have been fixed on the street corners, stating the hours citizens must be off the streets and announcing that otherwise they will be shot, if without the countersign. Minute instructions are given to the public as to what to do in case of an attack.

American Officials Resign.

Mexico City, June 24.—E. N. Brown and A. Clark, president and general manager, respectively, of the Mexican National railway system, resigned yesterday. It is understood that the motive for their resignation lay in the financial difficulties which the system has been forced to face, as well as the difficulties of operating in a rebel-infested country, but it is also believed that the tendency of the government commissions to interfere in the operation of the railway played a part in determining this action. It is reported that a majority of the Americans in the service will follow their chiefs.

HELD IN $10,000 BAIL.

Hugh Collins, Who Shot Herbert A. Staten at Vernon.

Newfane, June 24.—Hugh Collins, the substitute station agent at Vernon, who shot and seriously wounded Representative Herbert A. Staten near the Vernon station Sunday, June 8, was arraigned before Municipal Judge Frank E. Barber of Brattleboro here yesterday afternoon, and was held under bonds of $10,000.

Collins was at the jail connected with the Windham county court house, and Judge Barber held court at the hotel. Collins was brought in by Sheriff C. E. Mann of Brattleboro and was without counsel. State's Attorney A. V. D. Piper of Brattleboro appeared for the state.

The warrant, charging Collins with assaulting Mr. Staten with a rifle with the intent to kill and murder, was read by Judge Barber, after which the court informed the respondent that the municipal court had not the jurisdiction to try the case, but could only determine whether he should be held for trial. The court told him that a plea of guilty would be taken against him at the trial and that he could either waive examination and be held or have testimony taken to show whether there was good ground for holding him.

Collins decided to waive examination and the court fixed bail at $10,000, in default of which the prisoner was returned to the jail to await trial at the September term of county court.

Mr. Staten is doing well in the Memorial hospital at Brattleboro.

CLASS DAY AT DARTMOUTH.

Exercises of Commencement Week Really Opened.

Hanover, N. H., June 24.—Commencement really began yesterday morning, when the class, clad in their bright regalia, began their stunts on the campus and in the streets. The class day exercises, which began in the morning, lighted off in modest but hearty, light-colored and Panama hats, marched about the campus and cheered the graduating class. Nineteen hundred and eight, dressed as a band of Chinamen, made a big hit with the guests by their continual chattering and drills. Mike Stearns was the leader of this band, and to him a large part of the credit is due for the liveliness of the "Boxers." Nineteen hundred and ten, under Clark Tobin and Sturgis Pishon, formed a troupe of Venetian gondoliers. The activities of this class have so far been one of the live parts of the commencement.

Class day exercises were held in the afternoon in front of the Dartmouth hall and the class, Marshall Ray L. Brown, began the speaking by the address of welcome to the visitors. Following his address, Earl Van Kuren Wilson gave the address to President Nichols. The farewell address to the chapel was delivered by Robbins W. Barstow.

From the place of these speeches, the visitors and the graduating class marched to the old pine stump, where Fredrick M. Gannon delivered the address to the old traditional pine. Following the class oration, Ralph Stone, gave the sachen oration. The class poem, written by Roswell Powers, was read by Arthur K. Lovell. The class day exercises were closed by the singing of the class ode, written by George Steele.

At the end of the exercises, the Greek letter fraternities held their annual reunion at their houses or rooms. From 6:45 until 7:30, there was a band concert by the Salem cadet band, and then the audience adjourned to Webster hall, where the last production of "The Golden Isle," an operetta by L. B. Goodwin and R. F. Bundy, was given. At 11 p. m. the band gave another promenade concert until midnight, when the day closed.

DISCUSS SCHOOL NEEDS.

Vermont Superintendents Gather at Queen City Park for Conference.

Burlington, June 24.—Union superintendents of the state began arriving at Queen City park yesterday for the annual conference, which opened last evening at the pavilion. In the afternoon, State Superintendent of Education Marion S. Stone held a conference on specialist and teacher training subjects with a number of women teachers and later discussed school matters with the arriving superintendents. The week's session will be taken up with the consideration of school law, school management and school methods.

At the formal opening of the conference last night about 75 were present and more are expected during the week. Headquarters for the conference have been opened at the Queen City Park hotel and all of the sessions will be held in the pavilion nearby. The speaker last evening was Prof. M. B. Hillegas of Columbia university, New York City.

The subject of Professor Hillegas' address was "The Elementary School." The speaker urged the proposition that schools must supplement the farm, store and society as factors in education. He quoted Horace Greeley to show that Greeley was a standpoint in the matter of education, and read from Sullivan Adams, formerly superintendent of education in Vermont, to show that Adams was a radical.

RUNAWAY DRAGGED BOY.

Latter Was Kicked When Horse Freed Itself.

Burlington, June 24.—Samuel Cohen and Abraham Feinberg were in a hair-raising runaway yesterday afternoon on North Winooski avenue but both escaped without any serious injuries than severe bruises. The boys were driving down the street when the horse was struck by a long ladder which was being carried along in a city carters' wagon. The horse became frightened and at once started to run. The carters' wagon was pushed aside and in the mix-up one wheel came off from the buggy. The men were dragged along the street and Feinberg was thrown out against a tree. He was stunned for a few minutes but later got up and is apparently all right. Cohen hung on to the lines until the horse became free on Grant street and the driver was left in the road with the demolished buggy. In getting away, the horse kicked Cohen, but no bones were broken. Later the horse dashed up North Union to Decatur street. Here it was caught. Although the animal was out in several places, its injuries are not serious.

Rosset and Roscoe, not heeding it, went headlong into the rear. He was thrown over the handlebars for a considerable distance and was picked up in a partly conscious condition. Dr. H. L. Wilder was summoned and Roscoe was removed immediately to the Mary Fletcher hospital. Here it was stated last night that the patient was doing well. It is probable that one rib is fractured and there are a number of bad bruises but no signs of internal injuries as yet.

WOMEN'S CIVIC WORK.

Described by Rev. Effie K. M. Jones to Barre Audience Last Evening.

More than two hundred men and women in Howland hall last evening heard Rev. Effie K. M. Jones of Waterbury, Ia., a former pastor of the Universalist church, speak on civic improvement as it has come to be associated with the work of women's clubs in this country and elsewhere. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Barre Woman's club and Mrs. Jones' talk was more directly concerned with the methods employed in other clubs and of how these methods might be applied in Barre. Mrs. Jones was given a sincere testimonial of the friendliness which exists in the city toward her when she came forward to speak. Frequently during the course of her remarks she was graciously applauded. One of the pleasurable features of the evening's program was a piano solo by Miss Mildred Phelps.

Mrs. Jones began by tracing the development of the women's clubs in America and describing the forces which brought such organizations face to face with civic problems. She contended that organized clubs solely for women had their inception in the old fashioned sewing circles and the weekly meetings of certain needlework societies. Women, she averred, are by nature quite as gregarious as men, and the primal reason for the sewing circle of the early day was the desire to get together. Sociability was the reason uppermost in the minds of many and so the inherent instinct for companionship had its justification in the weekly gatherings mentioned.

Although the sewing circle was only a sporadic and feeble attempt to accomplish what the latter-day women's clubs have achieved, it served its purpose well. It was found that it was no better for a woman to be alone than for a man, in accordance with the scriptural injunction, and so the first women's club flourished and waxed strong. Its stability became more marked when a new era began to dawn in its existence. With the social instinct partially satisfied, members of such societies began to look around and see the broad fields of endeavor surrounding them. The desire to help its expression in concerted attempts to better those about the little circle and to improve the surroundings.

The third stage of the women's club came when its members began to experience race consciousness and the responsibility of making the world better. From the realization of this responsibility has grown the civic improvements plans of women's clubs all over the land.

Civic improvement has been in a measure a woman's movement, said the speaker. She laid it close up to the stronger sex that such condition of affairs is not altogether commendable, although the admission that men are naturally absorbed in business with seemingly little time for the things that appeal to women.

Mrs. Jones made the point that whatever makes for the general improvement of a city in which a woman's club exists that member of a club who feels that she has a part to accept in the work need not fear that civic improvement is a thing of the future. The work and the welfare of the home are inseparably connected, continued Mrs. Jones, and any move that betters the general conditions of a city must perforce have its wholesome effect on the homes of its inhabitants.

Later, the speaker told of civic improvement work in her home city of Waterbury, Ia., although she did not attempt to describe the achievements there in detail. However, she expressed her belief that the field for women's work in any community is wide and ever crowded with opportunity. Such measures as a sanitary milk inspection, the currency reform, the tariff question and the hundred and one issues of the day are all of kind that invite the support of women's clubs. Mrs. Jones congratulated the local organization of women in closing and paid a tribute to the wholesome efforts that the club is making at the present time.
